WHEAT

A Lesson From Joseph
J. P. Darling, the English economist, thinks that a modern Joseph would now be busy buying up wheat at its present low price, as by doing so he would set in motion forces likely to go far in conquering the world depression. Such a step would increase the purchasing power of agriculturists everywhere, especially in Canada and other parts of the empire. Mr. Darling thinks that the purchase thus made should be stored in Britain. Such a policy would, of course, involve the building of elevators and store-houses in the Old Country. This procedure would have an immediate favorable re-act on world agriculture and Mr. Darling points out that of the world population of two billion people, one billion three hundred million are dependent on agriculture.

Price of Bread

The British, according to the Northwestern Miller recently commented on the price of bread in Britain as compared with the price in the United States. The comment was that the ordinary white bread consumed by a British family is made of four, water, salt, and yeast, and the two pound loaf sold at seven cents. Beside the ordinary bread a considerable amount of fancy bread is made mixed with milk and shortening. If any comparison between American bread and English bread is made it should be with these fancy breads, he said. He further points out that in the United States the head costs are lower than for manufacture and delivery. Bread is distributed directly by the bakers, which is undoubtedly one of the methods employed in the United States.

Australian Wheat Situation

Prospects for the 1937-38 wheat crop in Australia are considered below last year with conditions for prospects, unfavorable on account of unfavourable conditions, according to a cable dated Sydney, April 26. Commissioner E. C. Paxton at Sydney. Seeding began in March in the early sections with the over-taking place in April and May and ending in June in the late districts. Wheat prices at Sydney strengthened slightly during March, the export price on March 31 being 2 shillings 9 pence and on March 28, 2 shillings 10 to 11 pence, which was equivalent to around 2 shillings and 1 to 2 pence at country points.

General Import Duties

Following is a list of duties imposed on wheat entering the United States from foreign countries:
Wheat, bushel 54 lbs., 25c
Corn, bushel 56 lbs., 25c
Oats, bushel 52 lbs., 25c
Barley, bushel 48 lbs., 25c
Flax, bushel 54 lbs., 25c
Canada imposes the following import tax on grain:
Wheat, bushel 54 lbs., 25c
Corn, bushel 56 lbs., 25c
Oats, bushel 52 lbs., 25c
Barley, bushel 48 lbs., 25c
Flax, bushel 54 lbs., 25c
Per centage increase in wheat

Stocks

Stocks of wheat in exporting countries as at August 1, 1937, were 166,000 bushels as compared with 66 million bushels on Aug. 1, 1932, according to an estimate prepared by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The world's surplus is placed by the same authority at 1,380,000,000 bushels. The severe conditions in the import requirements, the Institute says, is due not only to the large crop of food products in these importing countries, but in a large part to the general economic situation and the reduction of all sorts to international exchange.

High Canadian Carryover Expected

Canada will have a wheat carryover of 156 million bushels, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics now believes. Last year the carryover was 126,844,844 bushels. For a time the Bureau was more optimistic and believed the carryover would be no greater than last year but reduced exports and heavy delivery from farm changed the situation. On April 1 the total amount of wheat in Canada was placed at 313,979,144 bushels, of which 95,627,000 bushels were on farms.

Once a Week Service on Branch Lines Starts Mon.

Trains for Irtana Leaves Monday, and for Empress on Wednesday—Evening Trains on Main Line Will Run on Earlier Schedule.

The new C.P.R. train schedule coming into effect next Sunday, April 26.
Under the new schedule the branch trains running from Bassano to Empress and from Bassano to Irtana will run only once a week instead of twice a week. The train for Irtana leaves Bassano Monday, and the train for Empress leaves here Wednesday. It was formerly intended to run the train for Irtana on Friday but this was changed to the present schedule. The westbound evening passenger train on the main line will be about an hour earlier and the eastbound evening passenger about twenty minutes earlier.
Following is the new schedule.

SHEEP WINTERED WELL

Mr. Dodds of the White Farm, who has a large band of sheep, reports that his sheep came through the winter in fine shape. Most of his animals fed on alfalfa in winter, and he found it necessary to feed only a small amount. He reports that his sheep were the lightest in years. The recent snowfall brought a good supply of moisture and prairie pasture is coming along rapidly.

BOWLING

Bill McLeod, a bowler in the men's Canadian five pins at Posters' bowling alley last week, winning a profit of $20. The money will be the highest score made since the bowling club was organized.
Mrs. A. C. Thompson, scoring 163, was the ladies' leader in the men's five pins, and in the Canadian game for ladies Miss Phyllis Moorhead took the prize.
Miss Moorhead bowled a very nice game, with a high score of 75. Miss Moorhead is the highest so far in the ladies' competition.

New Watering System to be Installed for Cemetery Grounds

Board of Trade Votes $200 to Lay Pipeline—Will Run From D.R.N. Street to Cemetery—$1200 for Improvement Road North of Town

Meeting in regular session last Wednesday noon, the Bassano Board of Trade discussed the proposed laying of a pipeline to the cemetery grounds for the purpose of purchasing water for the cemetery grounds. The board voted to lay a pipeline to the cemetery grounds for the purpose of purchasing water for the cemetery grounds.

The new watering system, as planned by the cemetery committee will consist of a pipeline connected to the town waterworks at the C.P.R. D.N.R. offices, and running directly to the cemetery grounds. The pumping plant used during past years is worn out, and in addition, the too small to provide sufficient water for the trees and shrubbery in the cemetery.

Oppose Reduced Train Service

President W. K. Webb reported to this meeting that the executive had held a meeting to discuss the proposed reduction of train service over the C.P.R. Bassano-Empress and Bassano-Irtana lines. The executive took a strong stand against the proposed change, and the committee will be in communication to that effect, backing up their statement with reasons for opposing the change. Communication was also sent to the C.P.R. officials in Calgary, and to the board on the branch lines affected.

A reply was received from C.P.R. officials in Calgary, expressing their regrets at having to reduce the train service, and pointing out that this was necessary because of reduction in tonnage on these lines. The railway officials also stated that if at any time fifteen carloads of freight were shipped, a special train would be made up.

$100 for Road Work

A motion was passed authorizing the expenditure of $100 for the purchase of material for the improvement of the road from the town of Bassano to the town of Irtana.

BASEBALL DANCE DRAWS FAIR SIZED CROWD

A fair turnout of dancers attended the dance in the Community Hall last Tuesday evening held under the auspices of the local baseball club. The purpose of the dance was to raise money for the club. The club and in this connection the sponsors are pleased to report a profit of $20.

WHEAT PRICES

Wheat prices closed down more than a cent on the Winnipeg exchange. The market was 56 1/2¢ July 58; October 60 cents.

A Letter from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce

A letter from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce asking that the board endorse a resolution stressing the need of economy in federal administration, was filed.
The public affairs committee reported it was investigating a plan to build a new fair grounds west of the school. Facts and figures were being gathered, and a report of their findings and an estimate of the cost will be submitted at a later meeting.
The membership committee reported that the Harper, Royal Bank management was appointed secretary of the committee representing the business association.
There were 24 members present and it was a long and busy meeting.

SEEDING IS NOW IN FULL SWING

Plenty of moisture in the soil—Average May be slightly increased Over Last Year

Seeding operations in the Bassano district are now going forward rapidly, and farmers are working feverishly to get their seed in the ground as quickly as possible. Soil conditions are reported good, with plenty of moisture as a result of the recent snowmelt, to start the new crop.

It is estimated that acreage at Bassano this year will be about the same as in 1937, with possibly a slight increase due to the good moisture conditions which have induced a number of farmers to increase in field. They formerly planted alfalfa and clover, but the upturn in wheat prices last week may also have influenced them.

It is estimated that seeding is now about 25 per cent completed.

BALL SEASON TO OPEN SUNDAY

Patricia and Bassano Will Meet in First Annual Ball Season—Joiners to Play Same Day

The umpire's "Play ball" will start the baseball season in Bassano next Sunday afternoon, April 30, when Patricia and the Bassano Baseball Club will play the opening game of the irrigation league.

The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m.

Jacky Bulmer will most probably be the pitcher for the home team, while the catcher will be the home team's catcher. The disposition of the players for their positions is not yet fully decided. The umpire is getting on in all the practice they can to be ready for the game.

Patricia has one of the strongest teams in the irrigation league, and the home team will have to be ready for the visitors are up to form.

Immediately following this game the junior club will play and Bassano will play a seven inning game.

These junior clubs were recently organized to play in conjunction with the irrigation league, and the boys improve and gain experience in playing the game.

The teams competing in the irrigation league are in charge of: Rainier, Duchess, Brooks, Rosemary and Patricia.

On the same day as the Patricia-Bassano game here, Sunday, April 30, the irrigation league game between the home team and the other club, in charge of Tom Mullins, will be played at the branch camp east of the little dam.

The board of trade is behind the scheme to maintain and further beautify the cemetery grounds. Local residents who are interested in this work are pleased to learn that the board will finance the cost of material for the building of a watering system for the cemetery. The new watering system will replace the old one, which is worn out and inadequate in size, and will ensure an ample water supply for trees and shrubs in the cemetery grounds.

START MADE ON MUNICIPAL NURSERY

The municipal nursery scheme launched this spring by the board of trade is meeting with general favor.

Residents of this town are taking tree planting seriously, and their interest in the municipal nursery indicates their desire to plan and build for the future.

The municipal nursery is a splendid idea, and if properly carried out it will be an asset to the town. It is too bad a start was not made years ago, but even with this late start good results may be expected within a few years.

BRANCH LINE TOWNS NEED BETTER MAIL SERVICE

The new train service between the branch lines goes into effect May 1, giving the towns between Bassano and Empress, and Bassano and Irricana one train a week each way.

Claiming that tonnage is inadequate to maintain two mixed trains a week, the C. P. R. has obtained permission from the railway commission to alter the schedule to one train. The railway company, are facing a tremendously difficult problem of falling revenues due to short crops in the west during the past three years, loss of markets for western cattle, and encroachment of the truck and the bus in express, light freight, and passenger transportation. They are forced to curtail operating expenses and it is possible that in line with receipts reduced service on practically all lines is the result.

Towns on these branch lines where twice a week train service has been running will find the once a week service inadequate. On the Bassano-Empress line, the service of Duesch will be particularly inconvenienced, but those towns between Bassano and Duesch, and Bassano and Huesar, are provided with truck and bus service and will not be so hard hit except in mail service.

This is a very important matter, and should receive the immediate attention of every resident in the towns affected. Once week mail service is not sufficient for these towns with heavy mail deliveries. Better mail service should be demanded, and if the railway cannot provide it, then other means should be used.

The married unemployed men of Edmonton have organized the first co-operative barter club in the province, through which arrangements will be made for the men to exchange services for goods.

UNITED STATES GOES OFF GOLD STANDARD

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Intense feeling against the gold standard is being expressed by a "controlled inflation." President Roosevelt and his economic counselors collaborated with congressional leaders in the drafting of legislation slated to be acted on without delay.

This action followed immediately after Secretary Woodin announced that the United States had abandoned the gold standard following Roosevelt's action in withdrawing gold support from the American dollar on foreign exchanges.

AGREEMENT LIKELY ON WAR DEBTS PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Direct diplomacy was brought to bear today to solve two of the greatest of post-war problems—heavy debts and burdensome armaments.

Details were carefully guarded, but word spread that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, or Great Britain's former Premier Edward Herriot, of France, and President Roosevelt of the United States, were well on their way to an understanding on these matters as part of a comprehensive program of world rehabilitation.

France, a key nation in any consideration of debt or disarmament, was the focal point around which discussions on these matters revolved.

BENNETT SEES NO LIKELIHOOD OF TRADE DIFFICULTIES

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Great possibilities prevail themselves, for a trade agreement between Canada and the United States, which would be of reciprocal benefit to the two countries, and at the same time would not in any way clash with the Imperial Preference trade treaties, signed in Ottawa at summer, and President Roosevelt of Premier R. B. Bennett in press interviews today.

Garden Screens

There are few gardens, indeed, where one cannot work in screening. Even if there are not dog kennels, chicken runs, or telephone poles to be hidden, the general lay-out is improved when all is not visible from one point. Of course permanent screens are only produced by the use of perennials, such as evergreens, shrubs, and long-lived climbers. But quite satisfactory results can also be obtained by selecting the right type of annuals. For instance, African marigolds, Cosmos, ornamental sunflowers, larkspurs, castor beans, and other bushy, fairly tall plants will make satisfactory screens by early July. Among the climbers of an annual nature there are morning glories, nasturtiums, sweet peas, holly, and scarlet runner beans.

Lawn Repairs

Early spring is the proper season for lawn repaving and few indeed are the lawns which do not need a little extra attention after the recent and untempered winter. If at all possible a heavy roller should be used when the earth is soft, but lacking this implement a home-made pounder will serve. This treatment forces the small roots back into their proper element and encourages quick growth. A spring tonic in the form of some good commercial fertilizer high in nitrogen is also advisable. This stuff must be applied carefully to avoid burning. Bare spots should be thoroughly raked and then seeded heavily with a good mixture. Cover by raking lightly one way only and roller or pound.

It is well to cover such spots with brush or straw or the birds will get most of the seed. Where clover is in favor, the old practice of sprinkling a pound or two of white Dux over the area every spring and the mowing lightly if there is no convenient rain to wash in, has now been commended. Good seeds, commercial fertilizer, and frequent mowing are three essentials to the development of a splendid lawn or fair stemmed grasses which do not require full sun.

Rock Gardens

Steep pieces of ground can be turned into the most beautiful part of the garden by the judicious use of old weather-beaten stones and alpine plants. Such gardening is to be confused with the old-fashioned and very artificial rockeries. In the kind advocated here, boulders are set into the side of the hill, embedded so deep that frost will not seriously disturb them, and also in such a way that the soil between will lead back into the main bank. Between the rocks a miniature Rocky Mountain range is created with gullies, alpine meadows, crags, and steep canyons. Seed catalogues usually list alpine rock garden plants separately. It is most important to secure seeds and plants suitable to Canadian conditions, and it is also advisable to get special literature on the subject, or visit a neighboring rock garden, before attempting too elaborate a lay-out.

Hot Bed Notes

Seeding flowers and vegetables in the hotbed, or in flats in a sunny window, will be requiring some attention. Total homestead entries issued by the provincial lands department for the financial year ending March 31, 1932, were 5,499, compared with 4,428 for the previous year. Of the number, 976 were granted to women compared with 1521 to women the former year.

GROWTH

Is your child happy? The healthy child is a happy child. Your child is born with certain possibilities, and in fairness to him, you should give him a chance to develop those to the full.

It is much more important to consider whether your child is growing and developing as he should rather than to compare his growth and development with the average for other children.

Growth means increase in size. The best growth is that which occurs when all parts of the body grow in their proper relative importance. There is no evidence to indicate that rapid growth is desirable.

When most people speak of normal heights and weights, they refer to an average or standard. Any child or adult may vary considerably from the average and still be normal. As individuals, we vary one from the other, and so it is that it is impossible to establish a normal height or weight in the case of a fixed standard which every normal person would attain.

Growth is obviously desirable. It is during the earliest months of life that the most rapid growth occurs. By keeping an accurate record of the child's growth, his gain in weight and height, we have a most valuable index to his general physical condition.

It is for this reason that regular weighing of the baby is advised, and the practice should be continued at longer intervals, throughout childhood. Regular gain is much more important than the actual weight at any one time. Failure to gain in weight, or loss of weight, suggests that something is wrong.

The healthy child is, as we have said, a happy child, the healthy child gains regularly in weight. So we see that happiness and growth are related. The happy, healthy child has rosy cheeks and red lips. He is active, alert, and interested so much so that he is somewhat strenuous and noisy. He does not have to be coaxed to eat. He sleeps soundly.

This is the picture of a healthy child. Do not think your child is healthy just because he is not sick. If he is not growing properly, if he is quiet and uninterested in play, this does not mean that he is "a good boy"; it most likely indicates that he is not healthy.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St. Toronto, will be answered personally, by letter.

Turtle For Two.

"The turtle was 'in clover' when this picture was taken, and 'in the soup' shortly after. The background study in black and white is provided by the Mount Market Water and Edison Machinery, on board the Canadian Pacific liner 'Empress of Britain', in which they cruised around the world. The turtle, like many other rare and exotic delicacies consumed by four hundred passengers during their 20,000 mile cruise, only went part way.

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

Barbara laughed suddenly. "I've been a fool, Meliah," she said. "I've been a silly damned fool. I've sent away the only man I ever loved."

Mrs. Meliah took her hand and patted it. "He'll come back," she comforted. "Barbara broke away from her sobbing."

"Tomorrow never comes," she wept. "Tomorrow never comes."

She read, "Barbara's letter sitting up in bed long after Mrs. Meliah had gone comfortably away, believing that Barbara slept."

Darling, Darling, Darling (Pauline began in her extravagant fashion). I don't know why I am writing to tell you my wonderful secret even before I tell Dennis; something seems to tell me I must. I think somehow I've known it for a long time in the way that people know things—subconsciously, don't you call it—and that I've been afraid to admit it even to myself. But now I'm sure and I'm so wonderfully, wonderfully happy that I want to share my happiness with you, because you are my best friend and I love you. Barbara, darling, I'm going to have a baby . . .

"The little green and clock clock on the dressing table which Jerry Barnett had given to Barbara, ticked merrily on the only sound in the room that seemed suddenly to have grown empty and ceased to live, and at last with an effort Barbara picked up the letter that had fallen from her hand and went on reading.

"It's a boy."

Mrs. Meliah closed her eyes with a dreadful feeling of weakness."

Of course it would be a boy! Boy with eyes like Dennis's and a smile like Barbara's. The man they both loved. Oh, Dennis—Dennis!

She was so cold; suddenly Barbara realized that her hands were like ice and that she was shivering violently. She slipped out of bed, leaving the rest of Pauline's letter unread, and crouched down by the fire.

"There is still to-morrow!" It was as if a voice whispered those words into her ear as she crouched by the fire, and suddenly her cheeks flushed and her pulses quickened.

"Tomorrow!" It was not yet too late. He would come back, and just for once, if never again, she would know the perfect happiness of his love, and then . . .

Across the warm, beautiful room she caught sight of her reflection in a long mirror, and it seemed to her overwrought imagination that a smiling Pauline stood behind her, a smiling, happy Pauline, with loving hands clasped as she moaned over and over again in utter self-obsession.

"I can't—I can't . . . to be such a beast—such a vile beast!" And yet in her heart she knew it was not so much for Pauline that she was willing to make her sacrifice as for the sake of a child she had once been in her own arms.

Such a little life it had been, but that yet left something indelible in Barbara's heart, some memory which she could never allow her to hurt the child of another woman.

Barbara woke from a troubled sleep late in the following morning to the sound of voices in the little back outside her door. Mrs. Meliah's, she knew—the quiet, unemotional tones that never varied, and then another—"The only voice that ever had the power to make her heartbeats quicken and her cheeks flush. Dennis! and so early."

Barbara leaned on an elbow and stretched over to her watch. Half-past ten. Something must have happened to bring him so soon, or was it that he found he could not do without her any longer? She listened intently.

"Not up yet—very tired after last night. Sleeping soundly." Then Dennis's voice again, impatient, obstinate. He would wait—if she would wait. Then the sound of his steps going to the sitting room, then the shutting of the door, and Mrs. Meliah tapping gently on her door.

"Come in." Mrs. Meliah entered, calm eyes, undisturbed as ever. Mr. O'Hara. He says he will wait. I told him you were still sleeping."

For a moment she could not answer; then she said with an effort, "I'll get up. Please get my bath ready."

Barbara got out of bed and looked at herself in the glass. She did not look her best in the early morning, and she knew it.

"I'm old," she thought, with a pang, and hurriedly turned away. Barbara had never dressed so quickly before.

"Why had he come so early? What was he doing now?" She looked in the mirror a hundred times, and at last she went to him without pain or powder on her face.

Dennis, was standing looking down into the fire, and he had not taken off his overcoat.

"You are an early bird," she said, trying to speak lightly, and Dennis turned.

"Haha! heard from Pauline—she knows about Pauline," Barbara told herself, and her hand went to her heart.

"I am so sorry to come so early. I ought to have rung up, but I—somehow I couldn't. I— I broke off, then with an effort he pulled himself together again and said constrainedly: "You look tired. 'Won't you sit down?"

Barbara laughed. "Don't you mean I look old?" she asked bitterly. "Old!" He did not understand; then, seeing the pain in her face, he said vehemently: "No—good—God no!" Then again the unbearable silence fell. Barbara took a cigarette from the mantle and lit it.

With a supreme effort she controlled her thoughts and turned to him. "I had a letter from Pauline last night." Was that she had wanted? Every pulse in her body seemed to stand still awaiting his reply.

"Dennis said, 'Oh, did you?' And then suddenly he planged forward and took her hand. 'And I had a letter from Barbara,' he said.

"From Jerry?" She asked surprised, and the sudden relief sent the color rushing back heading to her white face. "What did he want with you? I haven't seen him for some time."

"He came to talk about you." "About me?" She shrugged her shoulders. "Was he very meddlesome? Did he beg of you to give me back and not to ruin his life?"

"Somehow like . . . O'Hara's voice sounded thick and unnatural. "Something like it." He caught his breath on a hard sound before he broke out savagely: "He told me you were his mistress."

"Barbara stared down at the grey ash on the end of her cigarette. "His mistress! Jerry's mistress! He wanted to laugh, and she wanted to cry. It was a lie. Thank God. It was not the truth, and yet—it might so very nearly have been."

"But it was, a lie all the same—thank God!" And yet in her heart she and she looked up at O'Hara's face.

"Well—what did you say?" she asked. She was confident of what he had said; most likely he had kicked Jerry downstairs—good, dear Jerry!

"I told him I should do what I have done. I told him I should come straight to you and tell you."

"Oh!" For a moment she felt paralyzed; then, then, meant that Dennis believed it—believed it!

She drew her hand from his and stood up. "Why have you come to me?" she asked slowly. "Do you want me to swear with my hand on the Bible that I am a spotless saint?"

"No—no!" "Would you believe me if I did swear it?"

Dennis felt back from her with a smothered groan. "My God, I don't know. Men don't lie about such things."

Barbara's white lips formed a quiver. "Do they generally talk about such things?"

He came back to her, his face white, his eyes tragic. "It sounded like the truth. I'm so naive, but you and that man—my God, Barbara—it's true—"

"You mean you believe the lie?" He made no answer, and she said in a voice that was only so very still because it was so unutterably tragic: "But well, then, go on believing it."

Like a woman in a dream she heard Dennis trying to explain, to accuse himself, to defend himself.

"I knew the kind of life you lead. You always knock about with men. I've always heard—it was Pauline who defended you—always; she would never hear a word."

Barbara's stiff lips smiled. "Ah—Pauline!" The thought of Pauline was like a gentle hand laid on a thorn.

terrible wound in her heart, and yet his very gentleness was agony. And Dennis blundered on, his shoes honestly and distress making every word an insult.

And Barbara laughed, a harsh, stately laugh that was like a knife-cut in the tragedy of the room. "You seem to have had an interesting talk together. Did you say it till the small hour of the morning tearing me to pieces?"

She caught her breath harshly. "Fine gentlemen, both of you—and you both pretend to love me."

Dennis said fiercely, "I did love you once. I did love you."

Already in the past! "I did love you," not "I do!"

She saw his hand go out to her, then fall again to his side. "He swore it! His said word born with you alone, night after night—is that the truth?"

"Yes."

He heard him sob as he turned away, and there was a tragic silence. Then he came back once more.

"That's nothing—and she knew that he was trying to convince himself rather than to apologise to her for his suspicions—"It's nothing, I know, nowadays. Dirty, often go to men, then they tell me 'I don't want I should like Pauline to do—"

Barbara turned away. "Pauline!" "But she's different from you," he said on honestly. "She's led such a sheltered life, and you?" Then suddenly he was gripping her arms with frenzied hands. "Tell me—tell me the truth if you've never told it to me before. Tell me!"

Barbara closed her eyes and swayed in his grasp. She knew she had to speak, to say the word he prayed to hear, and in a moment she would be in his arms again, her head on his shoulder—the divine resting place—and yet—

"I'm a wonderfully happy girl that I want to share my happiness with you . . . my best friend. Barbara darling."

Poor little Pauline! Poor little lady Pauline who believed in her and loved her even though she had betrayed that love and belief.

And then came a pressing thought besieging her, defeating her, and refusing to be allured.

"Now is your chance. To do a decent thing—to make up for all the shabbiness of your life. Let this man go—send him back to his wife and to the life that is his by right!"

"God, oh God," Barbara whispered, she tried to beat down that whispering voice, tried not to hear it. Then she felt Dennis's hands against her shoulder, pressed to it as if he were an unhappy boy, and felt his arms folding her closer, closer. "Barbara—if you ever loved me . . . oh, my dear one."

She tore herself free. She stood back against the table, panting a little, white to the lips.

"It's true," she said. "It's true—what Jerry told you. It's true, true!"

FAMILIES GOIN GOON LAND

Movement of unemployed families to farms has been considerably stimulated this spring in Alberta.

From Edmonton, the provincial committee in charge has accepted 100 families for placement, chiefly on farms northwest of Edmonton, and from Calgary 60 families have already been accepted under the scheme, which provides for joint sharing of expenditure, between Dominion, province, and municipal.

Medicine Hat has also come in under the scheme, and a number of families will be placed from there.

For generations medical men have paid tribute to the sustaining, invigorating, and health giving qualities of properly brewed lager beer when taken in moderation, for workers in every field of endeavor whether mental or physical.

Scrupulous care in selection of ingredients and painstaking supervision of an expert staff of brewers contribute to the excellence of Alberta Beers.

Shopping with YOURSELF

In many towns and cities shopping has become a profession. Experienced women who know the stores and shops, who know merchandise and values have gone into business as "Shopping Guides."

To a stranger, a trip with one of these professional shoppers is a great save of time and trouble. No matter what the visitor wishes, her shopping guide knows just where to go for quality, materials, styles, sizes, prices, and specialties.

And where do these professionals get their information? They are probably the world's most conscientious and thorough readers of newspaper advertisements.

Clever? Yes! But any woman can be just as smart. Just turn to the advertisements in this paper and let them be your Shopping Guide. No professional shopper can take you to more reliable or smarter shops than the ones advertised in this paper. No professional shopper can give you such accurate or intimate details about merchandise, about newness, about style, about quality, and about bargains.

The merchants and manufacturers who advertise in this paper are dependable. You can believe in their statements. They have spent their money to tell you what their expert buyers know to be the truth about the merchandise they have selected for you. Their salespeople know their goods intimately.

Study the advertisements. Make a list of the things you need and the stores where they may be had. Be your own professional shopper.

Counter Sales Books

Counter check books are reduced in price, and you can now save about one cent a book.
